*Here's to the land of the long-leaf pine,
The summer land, where the sun doth shine—
Where the weak grow strong,
And the strong grow great—
Here's to down home, the Old North State!*

College Song

College Colors: White and Gold

College Flower: Daisy

College Motto: "Service"

We raise our voices: let them swell
In a chorus loud and strong;
The rolling hills send back the sound
Of our triumphant song.
For in one great unbroken band
With loyal hearts and true,
Your daughters stand, and hand in hand
Sing, college dear, to you.

Our college days run swiftly by
And all too soon we part;
But in the years that are to come
Deep graven on each heart
Our motto, "Service", will remain,
And service we will do,
And as we serve, our hearts will turn,
Oh, college dear, to you.

Dear Alma Mater, strong and great,
We never shall forget
The gratitude we owe to you—
A never-ending debt;
All honor to your name we give,
And love we pledge anew,
Unfailing loyalty we bring,
Oh, college dear, to you.

The Alumnae Tea House

As often as we have turned the brass knob on the Tea House door to welcome a returning alumna or an interested visitor, so often have we seen the same quick smile and heard the same swift exclamation, "Beautiful!" But, more than that, our guests have told us that there is a certain atmosphere—it might be restfulness, it might be hospitality—which fills the room with personality and with something more than beauty—charm.

Certain it is, too, that many of us, as we sit at lunch or sip a cup of late afternoon tea, and look out through the row of French doors and long windows toward the sunset, and then glance around at the soft orange and blue of the draperies and hangings, the touch of orange and blue on the tables and chairs, the orange and blue of the lamp shades, many of us feel that something of the autumn sunset and a bit of the autumn sky have been caught up and brought into this room, and that something of the beauty and tranquillity of both have entered into our own hearts.

The Tea House is the first unit, ground floor, of the building which the alumnae are erecting at the college for their own home. It was first started in the spring of 1922, and completed in October, 1922. It contains a basement, kitchen, lavatories, dining hall, and a west porch. The basement has a well-equipped laundry, a heating plant, a store room, and servants' quarters. The kitchen and dining room, on the first floor, are finished in ornamental plaster, putty-colored, and have composition floors. The equipment for the kitchen is the best that we could buy. The furnishings in the dining hall I have already suggested. But it is here that the labor of love was bestowed.

True to form, we had put about all of our money into the building itself, and into the substantial equipment for our kitchen and basement, so that little was left for furnishing the dining room. And yet here, of all places, things must be attractive. Mrs. Elizabeth McIver Weatherspoon was chairman of the committee on decorations and furnishings. She brought to her aid Miss Beatrice D. Craig, who was giving a course in fine and industrial arts at the college during the summer session of 1922, and together they worked out the problem.

They decided that the draperies should be hand-block printed, after an old craft originating in India, more perfected in Japan, and in recent years brought to America by the late Professor Arthur Wesley Dow, of Columbia University, and that the designs should be symbolic of campus life. The students in the art class entered eagerly into the plan as part of their class assignment, and went to work on their individual designs. Any number of campus symbols were patiently carved on the little blocks of wood, but the designs finally accepted were these: "The girls walking across the bridge", "The girls skipping across the bridge", "the old-fashioned pantalette girl", "Zeke ringing the college bell", "The Tea House", "Birds and trees". These you will find printed upon the draperies at the windows, upon the hangings at the hall door, or upon the sofa pillows.

Miss Harriett Hylton, of Greensboro, is the manager of the Tea House. Three regular meals a day are served. A la carte and afternoon tea are also featured. Recently a showcase was installed, and in this is carried an assortment of candies and other things designed to tempt the hungry schoolgirl. A number of articles have been sent by various alumnae for display in the showcase—handkerchiefs, towels, bags, luncheon sets, table covers, aprons, baby garments, home-made candies, and the like, and they have found a ready sale. Such articles will be gladly received any day, and the proceeds will be added to the building fund.

Naturally, time is required for establishing any business venture firmly, but we have already had much to encourage us, not the least of which is the often expressed satisfaction of our college community, and of our returning alumnae, that such a place as the Tea House is situated upon the campus. Those familiar with living conditions outside the home—and we are legion—know what a vexing problem it is to find a place where the right kind of food is served in the midst of congenial surroundings. The alumnae can truly feel that they have made a real contribution to the campus life of their Alma Mater.

Class Poem

Our college days are ended—
We must leave the sheltering wall.
The state cries out for service:
We will answer to the call.

We love you, Alma Mater!
Your message, lofty and great,
Your daughters strive to carry
Throughout the Old North State.

When we have all succeeded
And our visions all come true,
We'll think of you, O College,
And pledge you our faith anew!

On through the years we will go,
Serving, and singing your praise.
Thanking you, Alma Mater,
For our cherished college days.

Time to Re-tire?

History of the Class of 1923

"There was an old lady who lived in a shoe—
She had so many children she didn't know what to do."

HAT was my first thought when I was detailed to interview Lady '23. She had been living in our community for four years, and during that time her fame had grown. I was wrong. In the first place, Lady '23 was not old; and in the second, she certainly had known what to do with every one of the 121 girls entrusted to her care. Instead of giving them bread and putting them to bed, the dear lady had used system. She had fed them on "zip", with plenty of bread, and given each an education of which she might be proud. All the time, however, had not been spent in study. Lady '23 was quite enthusiastic over the social life of her charges.

"When I first came here in the fall of 1919," she confided, "there were so many girls, 288, in my care, that I was afraid I would be overwhelmed. I wondered how the other girls here would accept so many new ones. They were lovely. The first Saturday night we were here they had a reception for us. Everyone was there. With this proper social launching, I was sure that my girls would soon feel at home.

"We had been here only a few weeks when the Y. W. C. A. gave a camp supper for the new girls. Supper was served at the barn by real gypsies; others gave us marshmallows, which we toasted over a huge campfire. Fortune-tellers in funny tents read our palms. Everyone was tired and happy when time to leave came."

"But how did you keep up with so many girls?" I asked.

"That was quite easy," explained Lady '23. "We organized as a class. The girls made Margaret Murray, of Greensboro, their first president. Under her guidance things went quite smoothly. The Class of '23 was also called 'Red and White', for those were their colors. The motto, 'Courage', and the flower, red rose, were adopted at this meeting.

"About this time the approaching marriage of Obe A. Junior and Ima Green Freshman was announced. The wedding was held in October, 1919. The wedding bells had hardly stopped ringing when society invitations were sent out. Truly that was the most exciting event in the whole four years we have been here, unless it could be the real graduation. Every new girl was learning her laundry list, and preparing to climb a greasy pole, ride a goat, or shake hands with a ghostly skeleton, depending upon her invitation into the Adelphean, Cornelian, or Dikean Society."

I was writing rapidly when Lady '23 asked: "Did you ever go to college and take a medical exam?"

I had. It seemed that medical examinations must be quite a feature at the college every year, particularly to freshmen.

"Before the Christmas holidays of that first year," Lady '23 continued, "two more outstanding social events took place. First was the Athletic Association camp supper at Lindley Park. Spooks and witches were surely out that night, and they attacked every freshman who had failed to stand on one foot while an old member of the association passed. On November 15th the girls of '22 gave a masquerade party for all the new girls. 'As fiction lad or lassie' everyone came, and enjoyed a delightful evening.

"In the spring Mary Sue Beam was elected president. Not long after this, the first song of the 1923 Red and White Class came into being, was pronounced poor by 'those that know', and soon passed into oblivion, much to the chagrin of the members of '23.

"Only a few weeks after the holidays everyone on the campus was confronted by mid-term examinations. The freshmen all wandered about with expressions on their faces terrible to behold. Great was the agony of that week, but nearly all faced the new term with a clear record.

"That spring was a glorious time, for all that," continued Lady '23. "On Field Day we took almost all the honors, and won the silver loving cup. That was the climax of the whole year."

The second year at North Carolina College, Clarissa Abernethy, of Hickory, was president of the class. The girls felt older and decidedly wiser than formerly. They were so wise that they tried to tell the new girls what to do. The freshmen were told to line up at the Hut for their programs and to get permission before unpacking. After all, they must have had a tender feeling for these new girls, for Lady '23 tells me that invitations to a masquerade were issued to them by the sophomores for Hallowe'en night. After passing through the "chamber of horrors" the poor, frightened new girls finally came upon a carnival at which all the side shows were free.

In the spring, Omah Williams, of Wilmington, was made president. She ably carried on the work begun by her predecessors. That spring the girls of '23 carried a daisy chain in honor of their big sisters of Blue and White, who were graduating.

"We had so much fun picking those daisies," said Lady '23. "We rode after them in the college truck and Frances Watson's car. Every girl wore a big hat, becoming or otherwise, and carried a pair of scissors. We enjoyed picking the flowers, but we certainly did hate to see the members of '21 leave. Not only did we lose our 'big sisters', but also our beloved president—Omah did not return for a continuation of her literary studies the next fall, but sent word that she would continue her education in a kitchen with one 'Charlie' as boss."

During the fall term of the third year Josephine Piatt, of Durham, was president—an able one, too.

"The new Blue and Whites of '25 had come to live with us," Lady '23 went on, "and my girls had adopted them as little sisters. They had not been here long before invitations as follows were issued:

MR. AND MRS. BLUE N. WHITE
REQUEST THE HONOR OF YOUR PRESENCE AT
THE MARRIAGE OF THEIR DAUGHTER
EYVA GREEN
TO
B. A. HAPPY, JR.

PINE NEEDLES

"After that we centered our interest on the Junior Shop, by means of which we hoped to become quite wealthy. With Mary Teresa Peacock as manager the fall term, and Josephine Jenkins the spring term, we really did succeed very well with it.

"Iola Parker, of Rocky Mount, was elected president for the spring term. There was great excitement when invitations from our little sisters to a tacky party were received," said Lady '23. "We were told to bring a tooth brush, a wash cloth, and a handkerchief with us. Our curiosity was at fever heat, and then we were told—to use the articles daily. The laugh was entirely on us, but we took it good humoredly."

The event of the year was junior-senior banquet in March. From the time the head waiter announced "Dinner is served," through the revelry of a typical city cabaret dinner, until the dining room was cleared and everything put away, we had a happy and exciting time. No one could have managed the affair better, nor presided more graciously as toastmistress, than did Clarissa Abernethy."

Next to junior-senior, I judged from what Lady '23 told me that junior week-end stood out most during the third year of their residence here. Then all juniors had senior privileges. They ate together in the west dining room; they sang songs; they dressed alike, and had a jolly good time.

Then came the day when the members of '22 were to leave. They put their caps and gowns on the girls of Red and White, and left them there as seniors.

Dorothy Clement, of Greensboro, was their president the last year, and she performed her duties in a most capable manner. The responsibilities of seniors were given to the members of Red and White, and they assumed the dignity that went with their position. Lady '23 told me of the delight and at times embarrassment of the seniors over their first tables. Imagine the young lady waiting for the head of the table to pour the coffee when she sat there herself!

"Did you see the senior play, 'Green Stockings'?" Lady '23 asked. "It was a huge success in every way. Mary Trundle was a charming 'Celia', who finally gave way to Colonel Smith, played by Sara Harrison, who had waited twenty years, unbeknownst to her. Aunt Ida, in the person of Allen Mulder, was a scream when she took just a little too much wine."

Probably the next important event of the year to the seniors was the banquet prepared for them by the members of Lavender and White.

"After that," proceeded Lady '23, "was graduation." We are sorry to leave, but since we have completed our work here, I guess it is time to go. We shall always keep in our hearts our class song, and shall try to live up to its high ideals.

"To stand upright and keep the faith,
And serve your high ideals,
We pledge, O Alma Mater, dear,
Our efforts and our zeal.
The 'Service' on your banner spurs
Us on in righteous fight;
We'll forge ahead, be ever true—
Your daughters, Red and White!"

MARY TERESA PEACOCK, Historian, '23.

Class Prophecy

SHUTTING off the noiseless engine of a new 1963 Sapp Model Pine Needles Flier, I stepped out on to the roof landing of the Alumnae Building as the chimes in Spencer tower pealed 6 o'clock. "Just in time for dinner!" I exclaimed, as a boy rolled my plane into the elevator to take it down to the fifteenth floor hangar. Won't it be great to see everybody, even if it has been forty years? And we are to have the class meeting in the same old Cornelian Hall."

As I looked around me at the city just emerging in shadowy skyscrapers in the great electric white ways, I picked out here and there familiar landmarks. There was the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, hardly visible for the building that I supposed to be Foust Hall. Almost straight ahead was the Greensboro Terminal, seventeen stories high, with thirty-five tracks, eighteen auto lines, the Atlantic-Pacific Canal Line, and twelve airplane lines running through it. The elevateds and the subways might have deafened me had I not just arrived from London, leaving after a hearty lunch and stopping over for a few minutes in Wilmington, the next greatest port in the world, for a few minutes' chat with Omah Williams Cavanaugh, whose daughter, Jane, is managing a matrimonial bureau for foreign immigrants.

I reached the first floor and went into the dining hall. I could not see a vacancy at any of the 500 tables which I had been told my alumnae dues had helped put in. A waitress driving a small blue and white truck, with seats for passengers on the first floor and an electric cook stove on top met me, and sending my order up through a tube as we rode, landed me at a table in one corner. With a push at a button my dinner slid onto the table, steaming hot.

"Is this a mass meeting of the students?" I managed to ask the waitress as I looked at table after table of students.

"No," she replied; "it is a get-together meeting of the Senior Class. There will be 2,000 graduates this year."

I glanced at the watch embedded in the pearl knife that I was using. It was time for the meeting, and I hurried from the room. Looking down College Avenue as far as I could see, I beheld a network of street car tracks and a bewildering tangle of automobiles. Between the two stone pillars stood a traffic cop, stopping the long line with an authoritative air to let a car marked "Peabody Park" go on its way. An elderly lady, quite stout, with a young man of eighteen or twenty was also waiting for the car. Several passed—"Dairy Heights", "Hinshaw Court", and then I heard the young man say, "Mother, here is your car". It was marked "Students' Building", and had large posters advertising the 1923 Red and White reunion. As we went toward the car I looked at the woman more carefully. Could it be one of the girls of our class? Impossible! Nobody had been that fat in our class except old Katherine Gaston, and this was certainly not she. And then I heard her say, "Tell Mary to look after the twins, Clement, and do see that Elizabeth and Matilda and Lavinia get off to the dance all right, and be sure to have Mandy get your father's coffee all right." With a jump that cleared several feet, and almost knocked over the nice young man, I landed on Dorothy Clement and knocked her breathless. Puffing and blowing, she tried to ask questions, but I silenced her at once, realizing that exertion might be too much for what appeared to be asthma or heart trouble.

"Why in the world don't you reduce?" was the first thing I asked her. "Don't you know that Catherine Gaston is manufacturing 'Canned Reducing Powders', and that you wake up after the first dose a new woman? And don't you know that Lizzie Whitley, who was for several years under treatment for over-fat, from too little exercise, was cured by this treatment of Catherine's and is now having to take Malona Jordan's 'Extract for Thin People' to get back to normal?"

By this time Dorothy had recovered her speech, and beamed from ear to ear. "I don't care about being fat—I'm too busy. Matilda is living here, and we have a school for the training of expert bridge players. You ought to see Matilda; she is a big, handsome-looking woman, well-preserved, and wearing a monocle. She has played in several international tournaments. And Phiney Piatt! She is the dearest, sweetest-looking little old lady, with snow-white hair and a lavender shawl. She studied for medicine, but soon gave it up."

I asked if everybody could come to the reunion. Dorothy shook her head sadly. Mary Trundle, Bertha Drew, Vera Ervin, and Louise Williams were in Africa on a wild animal hunt, and, though they had planned to come, Louise had at last found a tune which she thought would tame boa constrictors, and was too busy to get off. Miriam Goodwin was employed by the government to kill off devil fish off the coast of Florida, and, because of the opening of the bathing season, couldn't leave. Frances Watson was dietitian in a mining camp in the Klondike, and as a side line was studying architecture of the Eskimos with the intention of grafting an igloo on a Florida beach. She had been married, and it was her intention to legally adopt several of her grandchildren who had been left orphans after the first igloo collapsed at Fort Meyers.

We had reached our destination, and we got off in the midst of a chatter that began to sound like old times. Above the din I could make out two voices that, in spite of the appearance of the owners, I know belonged to Nell Craig and Maitland Sadler. Two little snow-white curls, rosy pink cheeks, and a gentle-looking woman was all I could see before I was grabbed violently by one of the voices. With an old-time whoop that belied her appearance, Nell grabbed up the skirts of her sixty years and, waving a Greensboro Daily News on high, rushed into the society hall. Maitland was unchanged, in spite of the few wrinkles. Not a white hair, not a line. She laughed and told me that it was all due to the outdoor life she had been leading as an Irish Free Stater. I could hardly believe that she had starved herself several times and had fought in so many uprisings. She had gotten leave of absence after promising to recruit Irish policemen while in this country. She had left Sara Warren, Eula Jennings, and Leah Willis there. They were too busy feeding the soldiers to get off.

We heard Dorothy puffing and blowing the meeting to order, so we hurried in, almost falling over Lavinia Powell, who, in all the stateliness and grace of a parachute performer, was leading the class song. We missed a voice as we started singing. Where was Margaret Bedell? Mavis Burchette, a most stern, businesslike woman in a trim tweed suit, leaned over and whispered that she and Margaret had sung together in Keith's until Margaret went to join the celestial choir.

Over in the corner a radio buzzed busily. Mary Teresa, with a most maternal air, hurried over and, saying that she was working it for her husband, took a message from station N. C. C. W., Mars. It was Grace Albright, sending regrets—she was very busy clearing the planet of cats, and could not come. Mildred Lupton and Ida Cardwell were also there, Mildred teaching the Marsites how to obtain the Rudisill peach bloom and Ida giving courses in long distance speaking, according to the latest rules of Elizabeth Stephenson and Gertrude Smith, campaign managers for William Jennings Bryan, Jr., and Alma Blount, who were running for prohibition traffic cops. Again it buzzed. This time, Station N. C. C. W., Royal Court of Turkestan, Agnes Stout and Elma Harper sending messages of regret that the emperor's ball, which they would have to attend as American ambassadors, would be held on the same night as the reunion.

The first thing in order of discussion found a goodly crowd present, and from one corner arose a most striking looking woman with a little girl, whom she immediately introduced as her granddaughter, and Lola Parker stated the object of the meeting. Her manner confirmed her as the leading member of Congress. She was followed by a woman with golden hair which had never turned gray, with quick, decided movements which betrayed her profession of circus performer. It was Sara Harrison, and she was wound up, as usual. Sara Harper, with a most medicinally professional air, turned around and asked me if I thought Sara's double joints would ever get stiff. She was working on a book, she told me, that would startle the medical world, on "Joints, Their Uses and Abuses". She was using Virginia Wood as a model, and expected to create a sensation with the facial contortions that she was able to get.

PINE NEEDLES

1923

Who was that talking about the revolution in Russia, and the hair-raising escapes she had had? It was Julia Montgomery, and I heard her say that Alberta Thompson had attempted to stop one of the uprisings with music, but deciding in the middle of it that she would rest a while, never saw the light of day again. Her sister, Nell, was being paid a high salary by the bolsheviks to play at their meetings.

Just then, with a bang the door flew open and in rushed several mad-looking women, who might have come from an insane asylum. But no—it was only Virginia Harris, Ruth Van Poole, Willie Mae Sams, Annie Maude Mitchell, and Thelma Harper, missionaries in China, and they had come by radio, leaving Hong Kong after dinner. They got their breath and almost broke up the meeting, bringing a message from Alice Elliott, Bynum Maynard, Margaret Lane, Anna Johnson, and Fannie Carmon, whom they left at Air Station 55596 with punctures. They were en route from Egypt, where they were making a mathematical tomb for Ida Belle Moore, who had expired after writing a math. book which had made that subject immortal in colleges and universities.

When the meeting was again restored to order Dorothy puffed out the fact that a discussion of college affairs was in order, upon which a ferocious-looking woman, with a voice that was far from being an excellent thing, arose and declared that she thought, for the sake of the name of the college and the class, she, Arminta Aderholt, could make the motion that Clarissa Abernethy should quit selling contraband hair dyes within the three-mile limit, and that Margaret Williams and Sara Presson should be gotten out of the federal prison for bootlegging. As a lawyer, she further declared that the sympathy of the class should be sent to the family of Susie West, who was in Leavenworth on a charge of smuggling hair curlers in from Canada. She had no sympathy, she declared, for Helene Hudnell, Ann Little Masemore, and May Shearer, who were at that time political prisoners in Haiti. Their cases would be hopeless if it were not for the fact that they had been able to reform Molly Matheson in her mistaken career of singing in Haitian grand opera.

She was forced to sit down by a woman who looked the part of a Wall Street broker and political boss all in one, when Mary Sue Beam arose to take the floor. But she was barely on her feet when Eunice Mann, a married financier, begged to state that the Class of 1923 was still forty-nine cents in debt for the lace curtains they had sent Patsy Calvert when she married the leading man in the Follies.

Eva Hodges, Eunice declared, was responsible for the curtains costing forty-nine cents more, for she failed to get them while she was teaching in Swan Quarter, and had to buy them at Brown-Belk's.

The door opened again, and Mae Sitson walked slowly in, dressed in deep mourning for the memory of her dear departed poodle dog, which her friend, Wilma Kirkpatrick, the famous canine doctor, had failed to save. She also bore the tidings that Alva Earle and Florence Kirkman were on the way, but had stopped over to see the governor about the "purified goulash bill" that they were going to introduce at the next legislature, with the help of Margaret Murray and Mavis Goodman, college food specialists.

Eleanor Hill arose in the midst of the hubbub and asked the support of the class in the national campaign that she was waging for shorter working hours for bees and ants. This campaign, she said, was an assured success, as Agnes Jones and Bula Kanipe were also working in it.

Helen Chandley, who had been famous in the divorce courts for more than ten years, took the floor with all the self-confidence that had rid her of four husbands, and brought a message from Stella Williams, who was raising canary birds on a little farm down in Louisiana, and couldn't leave because one of them was teething. Mary Burns and Carrie Brittain had planned to come, but as nuns in a convent in Mexico, had found their confession day too near to leave.

A knock at the door produced a telegram, which Maude Bundy, with the same red hair and the same tendency toward seconding motions, which being in the movies for some fifteen years had not spoiled, arose to read:

PINE NEEDLES

1923

"Coming. Hold meeting. Bringing food manufactured by Sossamon Hunger and Hose Agency.

(Signed) "ALLEEN MULDER AND BERTHA JOHNSON."

A peculiar noise on one side of the room prompted me to look up and wonder what manner of creature had gotten into the meeting. But it was perfectly harmless, the "polly jabber vous vous" being only Janie Pearce, who had run over from Paris for the evening and who was trying to talk to her old friend, Sallie Rodwell, who had grown stone deaf listening to Catherine Landon make records for the Victor Talking Machine. Beulah Brake, who stood head and shoulders above everybody else at the meeting, was testifying that her height was all due to Pearl Taylor's "Dieting to Music Method", and that all her extra weight had gone into height. Pearl had grown so wealthy off her invention that she was able to eat angel hash every meal, and was at that time taking Mary Herring's reducing exercises to music in order to be able to advertise her own successfully.

Mildred Mann and Elizabeth Uzzle, who had been on a world tour for a new species of amœba which Mae Allison and Alma Kiser declared they had seen while making a seaplane trip from continent to continent in the interest of Sears-Roebuck Cough Medicine, reported that they were going to give the proceeds of their find to a permanent fund for the marrying off of the old maids of the class—Jessie Redwine, Dare Holleman, Josephine Jenkins, Lillian Davis, Vera Ayers, and Alma Mitchell. They were at that time hard at work on the amendment to the bill that forced old bachelors to support old maids, and with the support of Grace Stone, who was boss of the farmers' bloc, would soon be able to assure the unmarried women of the state that their cats would be able to get the proper medical attention in city hospitals.

The radio again buzzed, this time to announce that Mary Blair, at Station Z. I. P., was in communication with the spirit world and was delivering a message from Margie Humphrey, who was asking for a Spaulding Rule Book that would apply to angels, and at the same time fit an angel like Ann Thorp Reynolds, who was playing forward on the team after being knocked out in a fight following a match game in Czecho-Slovakia. Another message through Medium Blair, Station F. O. O. D., was from Eugenia Gray, begging for some assistance from the class, saying that she was expected to live solely on music, and, being originally from Cary, was accustomed to more solid food.

Dorothy was at this point forced to sit down and be fanned back to breath by Thelma Hawkins, who had qualified in a strength test given by Edison and had been awarded shares in the Pauline Moore Ice Cream Factory, where cows were milked to music and butter and cheese were as plentiful as were the dimples which had made Cliffie Williams the most admired movie actress in the radio world.

Before asking for a motion for the meeting to adjourn, Dorothy called for the report of the committee on the revision of the class song, and Emily Wright, a most distracted-looking grandmother, who was devoting her life to the rearing of the five children of her eldest daughter, who was killed in a fight with revenue officers in the mountains of North Carolina, arose to announce that Lucy Parkin, Maude Rhyne, Elizabeth Robinson, Mary White, and Gertrude Durham were making a world tour to study the music of savage nations, in the hope that they might be successful, after forty years, in finding a tune that would be permanent and worthy of being handed down to posterity. She also stated that Carrie Dancy, a world-famous rattlesnake trainer, had killed off several of her prize beauties in having them to rattle off the tunes that the committee had tried out. The meeting adjourned after a rising vote of thanks to Pearl Knight, Jean Roddick, and Esther Moody, who had written a biography of the Class of 1923 that rivaled "Main Street" in its popularity, and I hurried over to the radio station to hear from my grand-daughter, whose taste for romance had that day culminated in her marriage to the champion high diver of Mauritius.

Song

All hail to Four and Twenty—
The Lavender and White!
All hail our royal banner—
'Twill ever lead us right!
We pledge our love, our honor,
Our loyalty most true,
Oh, class that fills our vision,
As now we sing to you!

You lead us ever forward,
As to our goal we press,
And we will ever labor
Our deep faith to express.
With love and honor laden
We'll pledge anew each day
The loyalty we owe you
For ever and for aye!

CHORUS

We'll always, now and ever,
Sing Twenty-four to thee,
Proclaiming joyfully our love—
Our honor, loyalty!

Hear us, ye people, while we sing!
Our hearts, may they be true
As we proclaim our love to thee—
O, Class of White and Blue!
We each will ever think of thee
As onward we shall strive.
May we always love thee as now,
O, dear old Twenty-five!

We owe to thee, O White and Blue,
Much more than words express,
And never can we show our love,
Or faith, which thou hast blest.
Then to our Alma Mater, dear,
Who helps us as we strive,
We'll give to her our loyalty,
Oh, Class of Twenty-five!

CHORUS

While onward we are going,
Helped ever by thy hand,
May thoughts of thee
Help us to be

THE MASQUERADERS

Often we have had to appear as characters other than our own. Repeatedly we wear disguises that are foreign to our nature. We have at some time represented all ages—the curly-haired child, the young man and maid, the stately old lady and gentleman. All periods have been represented by us in our play times. The royal family of centuries ago, the colonial gentlepeople, the society lady of our day and her maid, have been portrayed. All walks of life—the gay pierrot, the brawny sailor, the lady of Spain—all come in for their share of our dramatic performance.

It is by virtue of this that we call ourselves MASQUERADERS, for surely that is what we are!

Posed by Mary Green, Lavinia Powell, and Josephine Jenkins

Posed by Louia Woody and Ruth Wilkins.

Posed by Iola Parker, Mary Collins Powell, and Lizzie Whitley.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

VIRGINIA TERRELL, President

THE SENATE

IOLA PARKER, Vice-President

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Student Government

THE Association of Southern Women's Colleges, of which the North Carolina College Association has been a member for several years, is formed of most of the leading women's colleges of the South for the purpose of bringing before a conference of representative girls from different colleges problems for mutual help and suggestion.

The Women's Intercollegiate Association of Student Government, of which the North Carolina College Association has been a member but one year, is composed of colleges in all the eastern part of the United States, and includes many of the same colleges belonging to the Southern Association. The purpose of the two organizations is ultimately the same.

At present the chief undertaking of each association is to introduce the honor system and some form of student government into the high schools. As student government in the colleges has year by year met new problems, it has been able to trace most of them to the fact that high school students attempt to make the big change to college life without much, if any, idea of the individual responsibility for which student government stands.

The work has been organized by states, and through the colleges in each state represented in the two associations, all of the standard high schools of both the North and South are being reached. While many reject the plan of student government, thinking the students too immature, many others adopt it, and find it successful.

Colleges represented in the Southern Association are: Winthrop, Woman's College of Alabama, Shorter, Salem, Farmville, Hollins, Mississippi State, Alabama Institute, Brenau, Coker, Meredith, Randolph-Macon, N. C. C. W., Florida State, Newcomb, Guilford, Greensboro College, Trinity, Sweet Briar, Converse, Agnes Scott, Westhampton.

Members of the Northern Association include:

Adelphi College.	Lake Erie College.	Smith College.
Agnes Scott College.	Mississippi State College.	Sweet Briar College.
Alfred College.	Margaret Morrison School.	Swarthmore College.
Alleghany College.	Miami University.	Syracuse University.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

Dike, Adelpia, Cornelia! Embodied in these three words is all that is highest, noblest and most cherished in North Carolina College life. To the individual student her society is a torch, which ever leads her on to broader planes of intellectual endeavor and service. It is the purpose of each of the three societies, through special departments, to render service to both the college and the state.

He-ke who speak with re-ver-ber-ant grand-est, Thru hsten-ing pur-tals of Stamped with that bear-ty and light of thy im-age. We would go forth with a true wo-man-hood. In-to thy vast-ness we come now on a trust-ing, cre-a-tac Lith, Build-ers po-ten-tial and mak-ers of high-ways,
 Powers as yet lat-ent with wilds hope im-bued, Glad for the toil-ing die
 Eas-ing for oth-ers the paths they may take, And as the sun-set gives com-mon en-deav-or Glad for the wide-ness of ways to be won, To do for the place to the sun-rise Aft-er us com-eth the child of the dawn To fash-ion the deeds sake, still keep-ing the vis-ion Trusting se-ure in the love-kindness thrown, fabrics of dreams scarce completed And serve thee for-ev-er O light-far-ther on.

Tau Pi Delta

"The Flame of Service"

Tau Pi Delta is the Honor Society of the College. It was organized in the fall of 1921 for the purpose of encouraging well-rounded girls and of recognizing the leaders in college life.

The requirements for membership are five: College spirit, scholarship, character, special ability, and leadership.

It is the aim of Tau Pi Delta to foster worthwhile movements toward a finer life at N. C. C. W.—"to serve through work and love."

The present members are:

Twilight

Soft and dim is the twilight,
Lovely is the purple dusk.
O, beautiful beyond all dreams
Is the shadowy oncoming night!

Infinite space and silence—
Mist and dusk and the stars,
God, Life, and Eternity,
Within the space of an hour!

HESSIE WATTS, Dikean, '24.

The Fool

Caps, bells, motley,
Fool's laughter,
Scoff.
But the tears come hotly
After
When he takes them off.

Caps and Bells,
A fool's array,
So say the wise.
But I know better,
Since today
I saw his eyes.

The Quill Club

Organized 1921

THE Quill Club is a literary organization composed of such members of the Junior and Senior Classes who, through work on the college newspaper or magazine, or through especially good work in English, have shown particular ability and interest in writing. The club was organized for the purpose of bringing together those persons who appreciate good literature, and thus stimulate them to produce original composition. Written contributions are brought to the meetings by every member of the club, and each contribution is criticized in an open, friendly manner, so as to encourage and help along the amateur journalist.

This club has a membership of students and faculty members of the School of Education. Its activities closely relate to modern educational theory and practice. In its meetings these questions are discussed and views expressed from all sides—both seriously and humorously. The programs are well motivated. "Self-activity" and "group participation" are pass words. A rigid intelligence test is required for membership.

Why Is--and Because

An evening dress like a hilltop?
Because you get a grand view.

The modern girl's hair like corn shucks?
Because it hides the ear.

A dog with a broken tail different from any other dog?
Every dog has his day, but a dog with a broken tail has a week end.

A girl's dress like an airplane?
Because it goes up and then comes down again.

* * *

A girl like an automobile tire?
Because she loves to blow out.

* * *

Miss Spier opposed to Miss Campbell's theory of distance while dancing?
Because she believes in consolidation.

An influential lawyer like a man making a wire fence?
He's gotta pull.

Math. like an all-day sucker?
It lasts forever.

Physics like a married woman?
It's used in the kitchen, and works every day.

A dark room like a freshman's mind?
It needs some light on the subject.

A half-finished well like math.?
'Cause you gotta keep right on digging.

The Truth Lives Forever

New Girl: "Once a man in Greensboro wanted to commit suicide, so he laid down on the street car track, for the street car to run over him—and the poor man starved to death."

Old Girl: "Pshaw! That joke was told a year ago."

New Girl: "Maybe so, but it's still true."

Infallible Remedy

Two college girls met on the campus, and both stopped. "Hi," said Frances; "I'm having an awful time to get up my History notebook. How did you fix yours when you had History?"

Sue: "I made mine short and snappy."

After exams they met again.

Frances: "Say—I wrote my notes up short and snappy, and I failed the course."

Sue: "So did I!"

Naughty Tom

S. H.: "Tom's so wicked! He knows more bad songs!"

R. W.: "Does he sing them before you?"

S. H.: "No, but he's always humming the tunes."

Precautious

E. (as her friend came out of the infirmary): "Well, what did Dr. Gove tell you?"

D.: "She told me never to sit down on the damp ground unless I had on my overshoes."

A Collection of Short Stories

"I had my essay finished, but I forgot to bring it to class."

"I am sorry I was late. I had Gym. last period, and I had to come from third floor E."

"I did know, but I have forgotten."

"All the copies were out of the Library when I went down there."

"Yessum, that's what I meant."

"Sure I'm going to the lecture."

"Well, I didn't know we couldn't do that."

"Oh! has the last light bell rung?"

* * *

Miss Womble: "That sentence is so poorly put together, it almost rattles."

Freshman: "Well, you told me to write a loose sentence, didn't you?"

Difference in Cost

"In what way is a negro woman different from a white woman?"

"She gets her permanent wave free."

Freshman (after a call-down): "I know we shouldn't wish people any harm, but don't you wish our proctor was deaf?"

Examinations

At night I lay my weary head
Upon my hard and springless bed;
I feel like I am almost dead—
Examinations!

I think of this and then of that.
What is that old French word for "hat"?
I fear I'll flunk the whole thing flat—
Examinations!

Who was it lived in ninety-five?
I wonder I am yet alive!
If I can only just survive—
Examinations!

My head is full of "parlez vous"—
Where was it feudalism grew?
If I can only just get through—
Examinations!

And all those unkept notebooks, too!
What does the legislature do?
How is a tariff bill put through?
Examinations!

I wish I's home with my dear mother—
A thousand times and more I'd ruther.
I hope I'll never have another—
Examination!

Park Night

"Our motto, 'Service', will remain
And Service we will do;
And, as we serve, our hearts will turn,
Oh, college dear, to you!"

THE Park Night Pageant, which is among the most sacred of our college ceremonies, comes during commencement time and interprets the spirit of the college and of its motto, "Service". The girl from among all the students who has best served her college and best interpreted its ideals is elected by secret ballot, without any nominations, to represent Service.

Attending Service are, powers of body, mind, and spirit, and handmaidens chosen from every organization to represent in a smaller way what service has meant in a larger. The names of the girls chosen for "Service" and her handmaidens are kept secret until the night of the pageant. No one knows about how it is done. When Park Night comes the college girls and the visitors gather in the amphitheater of the park, where there is an open air stage separated from the audience by a lake. Upon this stage the pageant takes place. "Service," dressed in white, comes out, followed by her attendants. Each attendant offers to her the gift of all her powers. Music, literature, and art, history and science, strength and grace, offer themselves to her. The "spirit of the past" and the "spirit of the future" give dances in her honor. A torchlight procession of college girls surround her while they sing the college song. Thus is honored the college ideal of service and the girl who has best followed after that ideal.

The tradition of Park Night is not old. Three years ago the first Park Night pageant was given. The girls who have thus far been held worthy to represent "Service" are: Lena Kernodle, '20; Gladys Wells, '21; and Mabel Stamper, '22.

Preventatives

A freshman (going into a Greensboro garage) : "Do you have any shock absorbers?"

Clerk : "Yes."

Freshman : "Will you please send some home to my father? Grades go home next week."

* * *

Mae (mournfully) : "Oh! My nose is so large!"

Sue (meekly) : "Do you ever use vanishing cream?"

Who Sees 'Em All?

Teacher (in Sunday School class) : "Who is it that sees everyone on the campus?"

College Girl : "Miss Norris. I haven't skipped chapel a single time yet that she hasn't called me up about it."

Perplexing

"Why does a red cow's white milk make yellow butter?"

"For the same reason that a blackberry is red when it's green."

Hopeful, at Least

The twenty-sixth of January found a letter in father's hand. "Jane," he said sorrowfully to his wife, "the exam is over, and I hope Elsie's passed what I speck she ain't."

SPEAKING OF SERVICE

The North Carolina College for Women is doing a wonderful work for the young women of the State, and we support them in it.

Our ability to be of service depends, however, to no small extent upon the patronage of the friends of that college, and we want that patronage. May we not ask for it, as we too are serving the state? Our strength, our connections, our facilities assure satisfaction to our patrons.

"Jahn & Ollier Again"

ACHIEVEMENT

The goal of every ambitious man and firm is typified in the rapid growth of the Jahn & Ollier Engraving Company—the universal esteem in which their art and plates are held by the large national advertisers—and the enviable reputation for prompt deliveries which they enjoy.

The mission of all advertising illustrations is to produce sales and the growth of this firm has been measured by the success its customers have had in obtaining new business thru using "J&O picture salesmen."

Thirty thousand square feet of floor space (4 floors) and over two hundred and fifty skilled employes are required to meet the constant demand for "J&O" commercial photographs, art, color process plates and photo engraving (one complete floor is devoted to color process work).

Intelligent supervision of all work by many skillful office service men eliminates your troubles. Sales service men sent everywhere.

¶ More than ninety universities, colleges and schools of the South favored us with their Annual printing contracts for the year 1923.

¶ This phenomenal record is the natural result of the high quality of workmanship displayed in all our publications, coupled with the very complete service rendered the Staff.

¶ From the beginning to the end we are your counselor and adviser in the financing, collecting, and editing of your book.

¶ Surely if "Experience is the best teacher," as an old maxim says, then our service must be supreme. Decide right now to know more about our work and service. Simply write for our proposition.

The initials of a friend

You will find these letters on many tools by which electricity works. They are on great generators used by electric light and power companies; and on lamps that light millions of homes.

They are on big motors that pull railway trains; and on tiny motors that make hard housework easy.

By such tools electricity dispels the dark and lifts heavy burdens from human shoulders. Hence the letters G-E are more than a trademark. They are an emblem of service—the initials of a friend.
